

MUSC Office of Scientific Editing and Publications

As part of a broad effort to address evolving needs of the research community, the Associate Provost for Research has established the MUSC Office of Scientific Editing and Publications (OSEP) under the direction of Jennifer Schnellmann, PhD, ELS. This office will provide support to augment manuscript and grant writing skills for MUSC faculty, trainees and staff, and to assist in increasing public awareness of MUSC research programs and achievements through development of publications, documents and web-based communications.

This office is part of the resources offered to the MUSC community through the Center for Academic Excellence Writing Center and is available to faculty, staff and postdoctoral fellows from all colleges, departments and centers.

OSEP offers services that complement the Office of Research Development, which focuses on proposal development, grantsmanship consultation, funding opportunity identification, supporting information, and management of complex projects such as center grants, training grants, and shared instrumentation. OSEP services include: editing scientific manuscripts and investigator-initiated research grants (e.g., R01, R03, R21); editing and assisting with the production of scientific posters and slide presentations; and developing figures, tables and graphic aids to enhance presentation of complex scientific concepts and data.

The office is located in the Center for Academic Excellence, Room 201, Education Services/Library Building. Dr. Schnellmann can be reached at 792-9761, email schnellj@musc.edu.
